

Celebrating September 22nd, 2010, Lunar August Moon Festival Day!

The Moon Festival is a major Chinese holiday that falls on the eighth full moon of the Lunar Year, called "Zhong Qui Jie". At this day, the moon is at its fullest and brightest, celebrating the abundance of the summer's harvest. This year (2010), The Moon Festival Day falls on Wednesday, September 22nd. Traditionally, Chinese families observe the Moon Festival with a family dinner feast and then go outside to view the full moon while enjoying the moon cakes.
